

Vulnerability is when a vulnerable heat customer's personal circumstances and characteristics combine with aspects of market to create situations where he or she is:

- Significantly less able than a typical heat customer to protect themselves or represent his or her interest in the energy market; and/or
- Significantly more likely than a typical heat customer to suffer detriment, or that detriment is likely to be more substantial.